The original Human Rights Act was enacted in 1976 and signed into law by US President Gerald Ford. It was amended in 1990 and 1996. Its current form was introduced in 2000 and signed into law by President George W. Bush. The HRA became effective on October 3, 2003. The US is a signatory of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) and has elected not to become a party to the optional protocol to the ICCPR but remains bound by its terms.
